

Mommy Feeds Baby

By Christy Jo Hendricks

“Christy has blessed the children of this generation by normalizing breastfeeding.”—Joanna Whitlow, IBCLC

A New Children’s Book

🌀 Mommy Feeds Baby, a revolutionary book that is changing the way children relate to breastfeeding, has just been released. This new book is making its debut around the country and being hailed as a resource that can push the pendulum of infant feeding in the direction of breastfeeding. Mommy Feeds Baby makes an early impression on children. It is easier to influence a young mind than to change an adult mind years later.

🌀 Mommy Feeds Baby portrays many ethnic groups breastfeeding their infants and toddlers in various locations and positions. Since every mother has her own breastfeeding story, a special keepsake page is reserved in the back of the book, encouraging moms to attach a breastfeeding photo and message, which transforms this book into a keepsake commemorating this special experience.

About the Author & Illustrator

Christy Jo Hendricks, IBCLC, CD(DONA), has been an elementary teacher, English teacher, school administrator and health educator. She has a passion for both education and public health. Her two interests merged when she accepted a position with the Department of Public Health where she developed breastfeeding curriculums for WIC and helped organize World Breastfeeding Week Celebrations.

Christy Jo has been photographing moms and their babies during the annual Breastfeeding Week Celebrations for over nine years. She digitally enhanced many of her photos and used them to create Mommy Feeds Baby. The text that accompanies the book's illustrations are simply reasons why a mommy feeds her baby.
